- Q. And do you own these merely as examples or do you shoot them?
  - A. I shoot them.
- Q. In terms of your own personal research into firearms, do you go to, for example, gun shows or museums where these things are displayed or is it mostly by book?
- A. Well, most of my work is with documents and books. But I certainly do go to museums and have, you know, learned that way as well.
  - Q. Which museums have you attended?
- A. Well, the Cody Firearms Museum, for example, where I both got to enjoy the museum as a patron. They have a really remarkable collection and work in the archive there as a researcher.
  - O. Any other firearms museums?
- A. Well, collections in other museums. So the Met, for example, has a remarkable collection of arms and armor, including firearms. The British Museum, where I did work in -- I did work in London, research in London for six or seven months. I often went to the British Museum and spent time in their firearms collection just as a patron.

Page 66 encompass the colonies as well. 1 Would it include Europe --2 Α. Yes. 3 Q. -- that statement? 4 Okay. 5 6 Α. That's right. Earlier, you mentioned -- maybe I am 7 misstating this, but you did some research at the Cody 8 9 Museum; is that correct? That's correct. 10 So it was just not -- you weren't there just 11 for a visit. You were doing some primary research? 12 There is a library and archive there 13 that -- at least I think it still is. At the time, it 14 was called the McCracken Research Library. And the 15 McCracken Research Library has -- among many other 16 amazing collections, they have the Winchester Repeating 17 Arms Company archive. 18 Q. Okay. 19 Are you familiar with a book called "The Guns 20 of John Moses Browning" by Nathan Gorenstein? 21 No, I'm not. 22 Α. Did Browning do work for Winchester, do you 23 recall? 24 I don't recall. I'm sorry. 25 Α.
